COUNTY TEACHERS ASS'N ADOPT RESOLUTIONS IN INTEREST OF SCHOOLS

Local Association Urges Other Like Bodies "To Do What In Their Judgment Is Best To Keep and Maintain Our Glorious Heritage—The Public Schools."

The Hancock County Teachers' Association, being duly assembled in convention, on January 21, 1933, realizing the crippled condition of the schools, hoping and praying to find a solution to prevent the utter annihilation of the public schools—"The Child of Democracy"—Now, "The Orphan Child of Depression" who has been displaced from his rightful heritage by Big Boy Politics; and, slowly, but surely, coming to the sane and inevitable conclusion that their leaders and rulers must present more deeds and less talk have made the following resolutions:

"Whereas, Governor Conner, in his inaugural address, said: 'The proportion of the educational cost borne by the State should gradually increase, while those provided locally should decrease accordingly,'—yet the fact remains that both have decreased unreasonably; and,

"Whereas, Hon. Thos. L. Bailey has said: 'I will not knowingly be a party to any program that will discriminate against our common schools, the place where help is needed most,'—and, as discrimination has been shown by the fact that the public schools appropriation has been cut 40 percent while other departments of government have not been slashed accordingly; and,

"Whereas, as Lieutenant Governor Murphree has said, 'I shall favor whatever revenue program may be necessary to prevent the closing of the rural schools in Mississippi, while other schools remain open; and,

"Whereas, this condition existed last year and to a greater degree this year; and,

"Whereas, Superintendent W. F. Bond has said: 'A child in the humblest home in the poorest and most remote section of any county is as much entitled to attend a good school as any other child in Mississippi,'—and whereas this child may be entitled to this chance, but is not getting it; and,

"Whereas, many of our legislators have sworn undying fealty to education, but in practice maim and cripple beyond reparation our public schools by passage of various laws and the lack of passage of others; and,

"Therefore, be it resolved by this Association:

"1st. That the worm has turned; that teachers, patrons and the friends of education—want, demand, and shall have Justice; that if roads, bridges and other important, but secondary affairs to education, shall flourish—that education shall have a 'new deal.'"

"2nd. That the friends of the schools do hereby allege and claim that the promises and statements of the aforesaid Governor Conner's assertion that educational costs should be borne by the State in an increasing amount; Hon. Thos. L. Bailey's declaration that he favors discrimination to favor a revenue determination; Lieut. Gov. Murphree's determination to prevent the closing of the public schools; and that the sworn fealty of the legislators are null and void, or at least, ineffective;

"3rd. That this body, humbly acknowledging its responsibility and earnest desire to preserve the public school system and at the same time realizing its rights as American citizens—call upon all its public servants to hereafter do their duty rather than to make glib promises; and hereby give the aforesaid public servants due notice that if justice is not done the public schools, new leaders shall be chosen;

"4th. That this body which has invariably, without fear or contradiction, labored unselfishly and enthusiastically for education of the youth of the land—seeing that cutting of salaries and making of requests for free services is fast becoming a habit as illustrated in the fact that cuts from 25 to 50 percent and requests for free service increased from two weeks to four weeks—do hereby refuse to accept further unjust cuts and furthermore promise to give as big percent of free service as all public officials do, provided the members of this body are paid in proportion;

"Be it further resolved that a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes, a copy sent to the 'Sea Coast Echo,' a copy sent to each association in the State; a copy sent to each of the following: Governor Conner, Lieut. Gov. Murphree, Hon. Thos. L. Bailey, Hon. W. F. Bond and to each of our State Legislators;

"Be it further resolved that this Association urge other associations to do what in their judgment is best to keep and maintain our glorious heritage—the Public Schools—from perishing and vanishing from the face of the earth."

HUNTING SEASON IN MISSISSIPPI CLOSED TUESDAY

Fox Season to Close March 1—State Warden Says Put Up Guns For Next Season.

The open season on all Mississippi game and fowl, with the single exception of fox, came to an end Tuesday.

The fox season will not close until March 1.

In reminding hunters of the close of the season, Tuesday afternoon, Hunter Kimball, director of conservation, has the following to say:

"It will be recalled that the seasons on squirrel, deer, turkey, and waterfowl have been closed formerly, either by law or by regulation of the commission, so that during the last few days of the season only quail, doves, rabbits and opossums are being hunted.

"Good hunting has been enjoyed by a large number of sportsmen this season, many of whom report that a fair supply of breeding stock of quail and squirrel have been left in a great many places.

"The commission will turn its attention during closed season to encouraging land owners to provide necessary food, shelter and nesting sites for such game as may be left, and will cooperate with farmers who are interested in making their places more attractive to quail and other game. The very large relief annually afforded the many citizens who hunt and trap fur in Mississippi justifies the protection of fur animals as one of the state's most valuable resources, and the commission will do everything possible to bring about conditions favorable to an annual increase in the supply of these animals.

"It is hoped that all guns will be carefully cleaned this week and put away until the fall hunting season opens, so that the state game warden can give more of their attention to constructive rather than to restrictive conservation."

Bay St. Louis to Be Represented in Biloxi Carnival Officially

At a meeting of the Rotary Club Wednesday evening it was definitely settled that Bay St. Louis would be officially represented in the Coast Carnival Association and the Biloxi ceremonies incidental to the celebration of Mardi Gras.

Since the Rotary Club endorsed the project members have gone to work in the process of proper arrangement and in time a duke will be selected and Bay St. Louis take part in the royal court and the Mardi Gras celebration.

It will be necessary to realize certain funds for the occasion and a method of so doing was also endorsed by the club.

The committee in charge are Arthur A. Seafide, Joseph F. Scharff, and John J. McDonald, all young business men.

The duke's identity is a profound secret, for the present, at least.

DEATH OF SUMMER RESIDENT

Guido O. Korndorfer Dies At Home in Natchez—Was Beloved Citizen Of Mississippi

Guido O. Korndorfer, of Natchez, Miss., and for many years a summer resident of Bay St. Louis, owner of the property corner South Beach Boulevard and Citizen streets, and for many years recognized as one of the leading cotton men of the South, died at his home at Natchez early Thursday after a long illness.

News of the passing away of Mr. Korndorfer was flashed to this city immediately and many messages of sympathy to Mrs. Korndorfer and family were wired back. He was well known in this city. Enjoyed his summers here, had a wide circle of acquaintances and the news of the death is received with much sorrow.

The funeral took place Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock from the late Natchez residence.

An authority on cotton and the marketing of cotton, Mr. Korndorfer also took an active interest in civic as well as fraternal organizations of Natchez. For many years he was past grand knight and later past district and state deputy of the Knights of Columbus, Natchez Council No. 1034, and was state treasurer of the K. of C. He was also a member of the Natchez Lodge, B. P. O. E., No. 553, and was connected with the local United Commercial Travelers. He took an active interest in welfare work, being one of the chairmen of the United Orphans' drive and a friend of the orphans of the city, to whom he gave liberally.

Mr. Korndorfer was born in New Orleans, La., December 25, 1886, the son of Guido O. Korndorfer and Mrs. Ida Carr Korndorfer. In 1890 he came to Natchez, to become associated with the firm of Rumble & Wensel, wholesale grocers, and was in charge of the cotton department of the establishment until two years ago, when he organized the cotton business of which he was head at the time of his death, operating an office in Natchez as well as a branch office in St. Joseph, La.

Many local expressions of regret were heard on receipt of the passing away of Mr. Korndorfer.

A. G. Favre, Hancock county clerk of courts, and present grand knight of Mississippi, Knights Columbus, said "I know of no better man. He was of sterling worth and those who knew him State-wide loved him for his lofty character and many fine attributes. Such men we cannot afford to lose. They are living examples and models to pattern after."

AN APPEAL TO PUBLIC FOR HELP

St. Margaret's Daughters Have Many Calls—Report Of Work For January

Charities for month of January by St. Margaret's Daughters, local charitable organization, are many and varied, and well evidence the amount and kind of good a little band of willing workers are doing. Their work knows no bounds, no creed, color nor any other lines, but with every willingness try to answer as many of the appeals that are made daily.

For the month ended we find St. Margaret's Daughters of Bay St. Louis, distributed 23 baskets filled with food, paid for four prescriptions for the sick, supplied medicine and transportation to Mobile hospital for ill person, supplied two pairs of shoes to school children, gave twenty-pieces of clothing, six layettes provided, and made financial and other arrangements with King's Daughters Hospital for maternity case.

In addition to this report there are many minor charities and aids that augment the number and tell of the charities of this organization.

The dues of the members are small; the number of members are small, hence all the more the difficulty to operate and all the more the credit.

However, the treasury is depleted and the work of helping the poor and sick must continue and it is with such intention an appeal is here made for the cause.

We feel sure there are many here who have clothing and other things to give; many, it would seem, continue to fill the baskets around the different stores appealing for food, and many who would be willing to make a cash contribution, regardless of how small the amount. Surely one will be blessed for this kind of charity. Clothing the naked, healing the sick and feeding the hungry were among the great charities of Christ when on earth. Is this not worthy of emulation? And performed in His Name will make the charity all the worthier and the real reward sweeter.

This appeal for St. Margaret's Daughters is not only addressed to Bay St. Louis residents but to those who live away; those who really cannot give abundantly but in a small way frequently. We appeal not only in the name of the One who loved the poor but as well in the name of humanity. Such givers will be doubly blessed.

Many of our people are in dire distress. Children suffer as well. Not that people are unwilling to work but because of the unemployment situation which becomes more acute from day to day.

Surely one would enjoy his half loaf of bread if the other half went to someone hungry and in need! This half loaf would be sweeter, the satisfaction accompanying it would be greater and thus the nourishment would be double. Oh, dear reader, can't you see people are hungry and sick. Children are crying for food!

Mrs. C. A. Gordon, at 121 Union Street, or, telephone 367, Bay St. Louis, will receive any and all donations.

FALSE REPORT DENIED

Explanatory Denial of Report That Has No Foundation—In Justice to A. G. Favre.

The following statement, voluntarily made, puts to rest any and all false reports that have been made, circulated or even thought of regarding the kind and gratis offices in the matter of county welfare work of Chancery Clerk A. G. Favre, who has conscientiously discharged the duties of this work asked of him and which he has performed above reproach. The statement explains itself:

Bay St. Louis, Miss.
January 27, 1933.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Mr. A. G. Favre, Chancery Clerk for Hancock County, has called my attention to the fact that his office is being criticised in the matter of relief work done by the Government and State, in Hancock County.

I wish to state to anyone who may have heard this report, that it is an injustice to Mr. Favre, for the following reasons.

This work is undertaken by the State Board of Public Welfare, worked with funds furnished by the United States Government. The Chancery Clerk's office is not interested directly or indirectly in this work, other than that the Governor of this State has designated the Chancery Clerks of the various counties as parties through whom these checks shall be issued, and the Chancery Clerks do this at no cost whatever to the State or Government, and they receive no compensation for their work.

The work had been temporarily discontinued in Hancock County, and the discontinuance of this work in Hancock County is not due directly or indirectly, to any fault of his office. The work had been discontinued temporarily by the State Board of Public Welfare for the reason that the funds allotted to this county had been used up by me in the work in this county.

I am voluntarily making this statement in justice to Mr. Favre, who has cooperated with me in this work, and this explains to the public why the work had been temporarily discontinued.

I might now add to this, that the work is now going on under new rules made by the State Board of Public Welfare at Jackson.

Respectfully submitted,
MRS. F. N. EGGER,
County Welfare Worker.

EIGHT COUNTIES ORGANIZE FOR STATE RELIEF

Mississippi Board of Public Welfare Says People Must Help Themselves In Order To Get Relief From Public Funds.

Announcement of the setup of Garden Councils in eight counties and three cities, was made Monday by the State Board of Public Welfare.

Requisitions for garden seed have been received from these units and will be approved as soon as possible. It is the policy of the board that no seeds will be granted any county or municipal relief unit until organization of a Garden Council is reported to the office.

The Welfare Board urged that those counties and cities which have not organized their Councils, do so as early as possible in order that deliveries of seed may be expedited.

Counties reporting their Garden Council organizations are: Clarke, Copiah, Lamar, Lawrence, Jackson, Newton, Neshoba, and Walthall. Cities are Brookhaven, Columbia, and McComb.

A policy of "no garden, no relief" was inaugurated by the State Welfare Board last week with the belief that this type of relief will be the most desirable and effective to a self-respecting, industrious and patriotic people.

The program is designed to help individuals and families produce their own food supply at the least possible cost and to further safeguard their health and physical welfare by providing an abundance of fresh vegetables.

Although the garden program was primarily introduced for the unemployed and destitute persons now receiving relief funds from the Welfare Board, the directors urge that the plan be accepted for every family in the state as a means of promoting

With a view of meeting the economic crisis and with a further view of not abolishing schools, Hancock County Elementary School Accrediting Commission urges the consolidation of the smaller rural school and to only ask for the minimum requirements of teachers. This, it is pointed out, will lessen present demands that mean heavy expenditures with a smaller treasury to draw from.

At a recent meeting, the following resolution was adopted, signed jointly in approval by E. E. Lumpkin, chairman commission; M. L. Richardson, Ethel Sylvester, Thelma Fleming, Florence Russ:

"In order to improve the standing of the Hancock County schools we do hereby set up minimum requirements of teachers to teach in the schools of varying grades, and also recommend the consolidation of our small schools for the session 1933-1934.

"1. All teachers teaching in the elementary schools must have two years college work, and preferably one year's teaching experience or one quarter practice teaching in a State Practice School.

"2. All Boards of Trustees shall meet with the principal of the school the first week of school and study the requirements for elementary schools of the various grades and shall order such corrections as necessary for schools to meet Class C requirements.

"3. Each teacher must file a transcript of credits with the County Superintendent of Education before his or her contract is accepted by him.

"4. All teachers, before their election is valid, must be recommended by the principal of the school where he or she is to teach."

THE PRESIDENCY KILLS.

SIX widows of former presidents are alive today. The recent death of ex-President Coolidge has again caused many health specialists to remind the nation that its demands upon its chief executives are so burdensome that they shorten his life unduly.

"The number of presidents who have become ill in office or have died shortly after its termination," adds Dr. Books, as quoted in a dispatch copyrighted by the North American Newspaper Alliance, "is an accurate index and an unanswerable argument against the subjection of even the strongest of men to the terrific strain now imposed upon the Chief Executive. No president should be forced or allowed to serve a second term in office under the present conditions. The pressure of a single term of office is great enough."

"The presidency has become a hazardous occupation," says Dr. Dublin, Chief Statistician of a large insurance company, who says: "No president of modern times seems to enjoy the full expectancy of life. I am quite inclined to ascribe this fact to the sort of life which the President must lead. Those of the early days of our country had none of the constant routine strain required today, and with few exceptions enjoyed long lives. But those who have held office since the Civil War have been less fortunate."

"The charts show that the Presidents of the United States before the Civil War lived longer as a group than the average fellow citizen of the time. Then came the sharp contrast, for since the Civil War the average life of a President has been nine years less than his normal life expectancy. That is startling when one recalls that life expectancy for the average individual has constantly increased since 1865."

BEAUTIFYING THIS SECTION.

BEAUTIFYING the city pays dividends. In sanitation, values and general enhancement. There is nothing so simple yet effective and of such tremendous value than beautifying the city.

Under this heading comes many sub-heads. Cleaning the backyard, vying it with the front yard. Better looking fences, painting, lawns and flower planting. The latter need not be expensive. The chief essential of beautification is keeping it at. Maintenance means attention and every lover of his town and home will not withhold attention.

In this connection it is noted the new city administration is going to have flower beds surrounding the edges of walks and lawns. The county has long ago given the courthouse grounds this attention. A public building it must represent the public. To a stranger it is quite attractive and to the local resident a thing of beauty and constant pleasure to the eye and the artistic sense.

The new administration is not only going to follow the work of its predecessor in keeping the grounds of the city hall park in A-1 condition but inexpensively, yet effectively, add to the lawn and shrubs a border of flowering plants.

The point in view is to call this attention to the public who, too, inexpensively may add to the value of their own premises and contribute to the city's enhancement.

Subscribers who for reasons well known to themselves have failed to pay their accounts during the past month are assured that they can get full reinstatement by paying in February.

CLEVE HUGGINS.

DEATH, respecter of no person or condition, bereft Harrison county of one of its outstanding citizens and representatives in the demise of Cleve Huggins, sheriff, who was called away last week in the zenith of his manhood and life's work.

The press of the Coast and State pays tribute to the memory of Cleve Huggins, extolling his many virtues and sterling worth. His friends were many and of the lasting kind. He will be missed by his fellowmen and his memory remain ever afresh.

Gov. Conner has appointed Mrs. Huggins as his successor to temporarily fill the vacancy and until his successor will have been duly elected.

The foreign nations are falling over themselves to talk about their war debts to the United States. However, talking isn't paying.

POTENTIAL CUSTOMERS.

THOSE who believe that the advent of modern machinery has produced an overwhelming surplus of goods and that the world cannot use all that mankind can make overlook an important fact.

The so-called civilized, or industrial, nations have a population of around 400,000,000 people. Other sections of the world, with 800,000,000 additional people, offer new sources of customers and will consume vast quantities of manufactured goods if their standard of living is raised and they are able to buy.

Inflation is being talked everywhere and many people think that some provision will be made to reflate the currency. The puzzle is why such a step is necessary when this country has about half of the gold supply of the world.

LIKE THE HORSE.

IF ANYTHING could forcibly illustrate the law of diminishing returns resulting from increasing costs beyond a reasonable figure, the three-cent letter postage has turned the trick.

Postal revenue has been lost which will never be regained from the same class of mail, for the simple reason that the public has devised ways to use third-class mail instead of first.

The same thing will take place with gasoline. As gas taxes are shoved up beyond reasonable figures, smaller cars will be used, or larger cars will be used less, and the volume sold will diminish, thereby producing less revenue for the state.

The same thing will take place with property. Beyond a certain point, the owner cannot pay taxes. When that day comes, he will let the city, county or state take it and the tax rolls will be flooded with unsalable property, and tax deficits will mount.

The public is no different than the horse. You can lead the horse to water, but you can't make him drink. You can tax the public beyond its ability to pay, but you can't make it pay.

The political subdivisions of this nation, from the smallest hamlet to the Federal government, should readjust the tax bill and public expenditures to fit the ability of the people to pay.

THE papers are filled with reports of meetings of tax payers, state tax commissions and other organizations of "tax spenders" who are in a large measure to blame for the present taxation problems of the people. As advisers on the financial affairs of the people, they have for years taken the easiest course, acquiescing in public demands for extravagant public expenditures without raising their voices in protest or showing where exorbitant spending was leading the people.

Even today, most of the "tax experts," instead of recommending drastic cuts in public expenditures, are hunting ways and means to increase existing taxes or find new methods of taxation.

THE same thing is going to happen to every city, county, state and the nation itself, that has happened to millions of families—they are going to have to get along on less money than they thought was possible a year or two ago. Instead of increases in taxes or new methods of taxation to balance public deficits, there is going to have to be decreased taxation and decreased public demands on a balanced scale, which will eventually wipe out the deficits.

Families are paying up their bills now on reduced income simply by reducing their expenses below their income. Governments will have to do the same thing.

Nothing is further from the truth than the statement that "what we don't know doesn't hurt us."

A GREAT PROJECT IN THE BUILDING

THERE is general jubilation over the fact the New Orleans-Gulf Coast Shortcut auto highway is in process of construction, both in New Orleans and the Gulf Coast. People of both sections join in a great appreciation of the forthcoming accomplishment of the shortcut. We dare say many do not yet realize how far the project has progressed and each day its ultimate completion approaches.

Value of such project, connecting the metropolis of the South with their beloved section of the Mississippi Coast, where for generations people have come out here for health and recreation, cannot be overestimated. To the masses and to the individual as well.

Such enterprise has not only demanded money but vision and a constant effort of endeavor. The short-cut has been referred to as a dream, as something looked upon as apparently impossible. It has seemed sheer extravagance to many who dared to hope for its construction. That is how great the work now in actual process of building.

Executives and others who have made this project possible are principally from Louisiana. An outside State seeking to enter within our own Mississippi boundaries. On the other hand, Mississippi has been just as anxious to build. Our share, it is true, compared to that of the sister State, is comparatively small. For that reason it depended all the more upon the general and financial resources of Louisiana.

Both States are now joined in a great work and we will watch its progress and greater our satisfaction when the Shortcut will have become a reality to the very last detail.

This is a great project, perhaps the greatest single one of any in this section, and in a time of severe tenseness.

Nearly every girl knows that she could make a man out of some male specimen if she gets the chance.

CHEAPER LIVING.

THERE should be little or no complaint on the subject of living. People, fortunate to be working, continue to whine and talk "hard times" while the truth of the matter is they may perhaps be better off than formerly, minus waste and extravagance.

A round of stores in Bay St. Louis and vicinity reveals the fact that the cost of foodstuff is far below normal. This applies not only to certain food supplies but to every line.

There is a disposition of too much complaint. Many are discontent for reasons that could be far worse and more far-reaching into our daily existence. The man or woman with a job at less pay than formerly should exercise a feeling of thanks. We lack proper sense of realization only too frequently.

The man on cut pay today will possibly be the man out of a job tomorrow. This is only too true and the thought should not be passed up too lightly.

Advertising is praised by good business men who ought to know what they say is the truth. Those who say advertising doesn't pay have little experience with its power.

SAUNTERINGS. From Where The West Begins.

By JOHN T. MEYERS
(For the Sea Coast Echo)

TOURISTS visiting San Antonio are directed to Witte Memorial museum as one of the many local show places of unusual charm and interest.

In the museum are collected numerous relics pertaining to pioneer days of Texas. Documents and intimate personal possessions of men and women, who played prominent part in shaping the destiny of the great Lone Star state, are enclosed in glass-covered cases—preserved for posterity.

A STAGE coach that was on a run between San Antonio and Brownsville over 50 years ago is here in a remarkable state of preservation. It's legend is filled with tender romance of young pioneer passengers from the ranchlands blissfully bound for San Antonio on their honeymoons. Danger and exciting adventure, likewise, sometimes rode unforseen as the galloping steeds drew the picturesque stage coach over the rough and hazardous trails of the then uncivilized southwest. Many times this stage coach was the object of real wild-west hold ups at the point of guns brandished by members of a famous band of pioneer day desperadoes.

BRANDING irons of varied designs and shapes, some from ranches well-known to readers of western fiction are on display. There is a faded official "Book of Brands" depicting brands and their owners. Hundreds of brands are listed in this record book that was kept at the court house in some county seat to settle disputes that might have arisen over brands.

Hearts' circles, triangles, initials, arrows, anchors, and X's in all sorts of combinations are represented on the pages of this fascinating book.

In the heyday of cattle raising on the open ranges of southwest Texas, each ranch had its own particular brand to identify their cattle during the round-ups. At this time the new calves and steers are branded. This is part of the cowboy's work. The cattle are roped and thrown, and the heated branding iron applied to their hides, usually about the flanks.

IN the olden days cattle rustlers were very clever and adept in the infamous art of disguising cattle brands. Thus the cattlemen were compelled to design and select a brand that would be difficult to change without danger of detection.

One method practiced by the rustlers was to brand right over the original marking, adding to the design in an attempt to deceive the rightful cattle owner. Many a fatal six-shooter battle climaxed discovery of the rustler's activities. According to veterans of the saddle, killing a cattle rustler was no more than killing a "rattler" in the stern code of the early west—both were done for the good of the country.

LARIATS made from rawhide, and another fashioned from horse hair by a Mexican ranch hand are exhibited. The lariat, or lasso as they are also called in Texas, are part of a cowboy's equipment, and used to rope steers from the saddle of galloping mustang ponies.

Among other objects of interest to greet the visitor's eye in this Texas Room of the museum are: pistols, rifles, swords, etc., recovered from historic battle grounds of Texas during her valiant struggle for freedom and independence. Bullet-ridden flags that were carried defiantly into the midst of battle. Spurs with long dangling points, characteristic of the west. Uniforms worn by gallant Texas heroes. An ante-bellum style wedding dress made by a mistress for her slave. A rake made entirely of wood, and other implements, wagons and furniture carved from wood by the hearty pioneer settlers.

NEAR the stairway leading to rooms devoted to works of art in a replica of a section of rock containing Indian petroglyphs found near Terlingua. Brewster Archaeologists so far have been unable to decipher these strange symbols. However, they are associated with the period in which the basket-maker Indians lived and carved records of their race and culture. This is variously estimated to be between 3000 and 5000 years ago.

The Basket-Maker Indians are the first inhabitants of the land that is now United States to leave any evidence of their culture, according to a placard beneath these unfathomable writings from the deep shadows of the past.

Some other time this column will relate more bits of interest from within this San Antonio museum.

GENERAL GRANT COMES BACK WITH AN EXPLOSION.

THE time is 1861. General Grant just given a commission as colonel, has been ordered from Galena, Illinois, to Missouri to take charge of a regiment. As he is about to take the train he engages one John B. Norton in conversation. Seeing a cigar protruding out of Grant's pocket, Norton deftly lifts it, as he has lifted many another, and thanks the departing soldier for the smoke. Up to this time Grant was not considered an authority on any subject excepting good tobacco.

As the soldier boards the train he waves his hand at his friend. His beard is too thick to discern the ironic smile curling on his lips. Norton went home and smoked his pipe, saving the cigar for a gala day. Before he came to smoke it Grant had flashed up the ladder of renown and the cigar was preserved as a heritage. It finally found a resting place on a bed of white velvet under a glass case by the side of the inscription: "Presented to John B. Norton by General U. S. Grant when they bade farewell to each other at the beginning of the war."

The time now approaches the threshold of 1933. Seventy years have passed and Winstead Norton, grandson of Grant's erstwhile friend, is host at a banquet at which it is determined to smoke the Grant cigar in the presence of his friends. He spoke like this:

"This is more than a cigar. It is a torch of friendship. Always it has been to me a reminder that U. S. Grant among all the millions in the United States picked my grandfather to be his close friend, his intimate friend, the sort of a friend you give a cigar to. I shall light this cigar and as the smoke rings curl from it I shall see those two sterling Americans, those two staunch comrades, their strong hands gripped in farewell, tears, manly tears in their eyes."

The cigar was lighted while the minds drifted back to that mighty struggle under which the earth shook for four long years. A puff was taken. Then another. Then a long one. Then the cigar blew up. It had been loaded.

Grant was not the only man who got tired of having friends save their nickels while they picked cigars out of his pocket. He planted the loaded cigar in a conspicuous place for a mighty good reason. He was cheered through many a bloody battle by the thought of that cigar exploding in Norton's face while the latter was caressing the nickels in his pocket with his long fingers. But it has been written that, "The sins of the fathers..."—Clarion-Ledger.

WOMAN LOST 10 LBS. IN A WEEK

Mrs. Betty Luedke of Dayton, writes: "I am using Kruschen to reduce weight—I lost 10 pounds in one week and cannot say too much to recommend it."

To take off fat easily, SAFELY and HARMLESSLY—take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it is the safe way to lose unsightly fat and one bottle that lasts 4 weeks cost but a trifle. Get it at any drugstore in America. If this first bottle fails, to convince you this is the safest way to lose fat—money back.

But be sure and get Kruschen Salts—imitations are numerous and you must safeguard your health.

NEW ORLEANS

Heighho. To New Orleans, so fair,
Where Carnival reigns high;
Loiter where rose breath fills the air,
Neath bluest, mildest sky.

Gaze on Cathedral old and gray,
Just by great Jackson's square;
Walk to the yellow river's quay,
Where negroes toil and swear.

Wander where royalty once danced,
In ancient Creole homes;
In Spanish courtyard sit entranced,
Where ghosts of Past now roam.

Read all the strange historic lore,
Of Spain and France so proud;
Sigh o'er the legends brave, galore,
And mingle with the crowd.

See Rex and Comus revels bright,
In balls and masquerade;
Laugh with the maskers gay delight,
In city dreams have made.

Breathe of nostalgia on the air,
Where birds all Winter sing;
Rest on a place unknown to Care,
Where Love and Joy will ring.

The city old, transformed anew,
With great skyscrapers tall;
A panorama set to view,
Whose memories we'll recall.

THE ST. LOUIS CATHEDRAL. (New Orleans, La.)

It is the dim, Cathedral old,
Where knelt the Sieurs of France;
It is the theme of History told,
Mid War and Love and Dance.

It is a spot by Bishops blest,
The pride of New Orleans;
The grave where royalty doth rest,
Mid quaint and ancient scenes.

It is the Guardian set on high,
Of Creoles true and brave;
It looks in love neath sunlit sky,
On Mississippi's wave.

It's seen transfer from France and Spain,
In times of troublous war;
Then back to well loved France,
Now neath the stripe and star.

It's watched its offspring thrive and grow,
To city rich and vast;
It rests in winds that softly blow,
Its head in age now cast.

St. Louis whispers from its dome,
Neath which so many pray;
The Virgin blest claims it as home,
Gem of another day.

WORK AND PLAY.

A friend asked me the other day,
How I could find the time,
With all my family, and work to do—
To write these lines that rhyme.

It doesn't require much thinking,
To dust and clean a room,
To sit and patch the children's clothes,
To wield the useful broom.

So while I'm doing all these things,
I'm thinking up a rhyme,
It's lots of fun, as you will see,
If you'll only try sometime.

Side Quit Hurting, Got Stronger, Well; CARDUI Helped Her

Mrs. R. L. West, of Huntsville, Ala., writes: "I was weak and run-down. I had a pain in my side, and I kept losing weight. I grew nervous over my condition—this was unusual for me, for I am very cheerful when I am well and don't easily get nervous. I knew I ought to take something. My aunt told me I ought to try Cardui, which I did. I began to feel better. It kept it up until I had taken three or four bottles. My side quit hurting and I was soon feeling strong and well. Cardui is sold at drug stores here."

County News

By R. H. BRYSON,
(County Agent)

IMPROVED PASTURES MEAN MORE MONEY FROM LIVE- STOCK.

WITH the vast acreage of land in Hancock county suitable for producing grazing crops, live-stock could easily become the major project in agricultural development. The native seed grass provides a very good pasture from early spring until about July 1st, and cattle make very good gains in weight during this period. After July 1st, the grass becomes tough and unpalatable, and generally speaking, by October the animals are not getting enough food out of the grass to maintain body weight. This means during balance of fall and winter months, the animals are using up their body weight to maintain substance for the heart, consequently unless winter grazing or feed crops are available the total gain per animal per year is not enough to pay a profit on the investment.

During this period of economic distress more people are resorting to raising of livestock as a means of livelihood, and, as a result, there is any quantity of low grade beef on the market. On the other hand, the buyers are wanting the most for their dollar, therefore, only the best quality beef finds a sale at a profit. Those interested in improved pastures of Carpet Grass and Lespedeza can, under right management, get 1 1/2 to 2 to 3 times as much per acre as the native grass. The process of providing an improved pasture of Carpet Grass by disk and with spring-tooth harrow and unless followed within a few days by heavy rain to settle ground, go over with heavy drag to firm the soil, and plant 10 pounds Carpet Grass along with 25 lbs. Lespedeza seed per acre, February 10th to 25th. Do not plant the seed on a loose or soft seed-bed. The small plants will not survive the drought during summer months.

It is not necessary to fertilize the ground to get a pasture started, but an application of 200 to 250 pounds acid phosphate or 4-8-4 will pay for itself several times over. The Carpet Grass will not give much pasturing the first year, but the Lespedeza will furnish some grazing by June 1st, and under right management, the pasture will provide ample grazing for one mature animal per acre the second year.

With this kind of pasture for the spring, summer, fall months and supplemented with Oats and Rye, or barn clover as winter grazing, or soy bean hay during the non-grazing period, and the use of Sires of proven ability on the best type heifers along with proper handling, Hancock County could easily gain from pure quality as a cattle producing section.

Your County Agent will gladly assist you with your pasture problems.

THE SWEET POTATO AN IM- PORTANT FARM CROP

With livestock representing possibly the major project on many South Mississippi Farms, and the fact that the sweet potato is relished and readily eaten by all farm animals, it is quite evident that this crop be given a prominent place in the farm program. This crop not only provides a good yield of feed for livestock and poultry, but it is a possible money crop if carefully cured and placed on the markets during the Spring months.

The common practice in the past has been to plant the potatoes in a dirt bank during the winter and in spring if not all spoiled by rotting, they would be placed on the market. As long as there were none better an occasional sale was made, but with development of the kiln-dried method the old market requirements, the potato must be free of diseases.

Suggestions for selecting and treating seed sweet potatoes offered by our State Extension Horticulturist are as follows:

"The most important point in seed selection is to use disease free seed. If seed are bought, use Mississippi certified grade 'A' seed which have been inspected and found entirely free of stem rot and black rot. Unless you are sure your home grown seed are absolutely free of disease it is advisable to buy the certified seed or plants. Select smooth uniform potatoes for seed from one to three inches in diameter and avoid using extra small 'strings' or large rough 'jumbos.' Potatoes grown from vine cuttings are more uniform in size and are best for seed."

"The seed should always be treated before bedding even if there is apparently no disease present. The method of treating is as follows: Dissolve 4 ounce of Bichloride of Mercury in 30 gallons of water in a wooden barrel. Place the seed in a sack in this solution and leave for 10 minutes. After 8 or 10 bushels have been treated, make up a new solution. Allow the seed to dry as soon as possible after removing from solution. Caution: Bichloride of Mercury is a deadly poison if taken internally and should always be poured out where it will soak into the soil in order to prevent chickens or livestock from drinking it."

The farmer who expects to produce a good yield of sweet potatoes this season should give some thought at this time to building a sweet potato storage house during the summer months for the purpose of curing at least a part of his crop and placing them on the market next spring.

An efficient potato storage or curing house can be built with peeled pine poles and the cracks stopped with mud mortar at a small expense and by having such a house the marketing period can be extended.

DRAINAGE

Drainage is one of the first jobs on a majority of farms or garden plots in the flat lands of Hancock county before the owner or operator can expect profitable crop yields.

Soil, water-logged, or with the water-table too near the surface becomes sour and cold-natured, and very little, if any, of the fertilizer applied is taken up by the crop. The crops get off to a poor start in the spring; are more liable to attack by diseases and insect pests, and is likely to scald in the summer from the hot sun following a heavy rain.

The ground should be ditched so as to lower the water table 2 feet or more below the surface of ground. A deeply broken, finely pulverized soil well filled with humus or organic matter favors rapid multiplication and development of roots, and enables them to travel rapidly in search of food. Such soils, properly drained, and with proper fertilizer and attention under average conditions will yield good crops.

STANISLAUS LEATHER- PUSHERS TO MEET CATHOLIC HIGH

The Stanislaus leather-pushers have been busily engaged for the past few days preparing for the invasion of the Catholic High boxes. The latter are bringing a formidable squad, and hope to repeat the victory gained over the Rock-A-Chaws of two years ago. Eddie Blaize is the only veteran of the team, and he has memories of that trip and that encounter which are to bring a different tale to the boys from the Red Stick town.

Castro, Rhoddy, Thepani and some of the other heavier men will see action as Brother Peter is bringing a well-balanced team to try the wares of Stanislaus. Of the lighter men who will see action, Fayard, Jesse, Billy and Jack Robertson, Jimmy Filkins, Villa, Teny Gianelloni, Larry Barber, and Frank Fagan have good chance of getting the call from Junior Breach.

Brother Peter phoned Tuesday that he expected to arrive some time early Friday afternoon with ten winners.

FRISCO'S BRIDGE TO BE GREATEST

Will Have Longest Clear
Suspension Span in World

The Golden Gate bridge will be one of the wonders of the world, according to statistics made public by the engineering staffs.

It will have the longest single clear suspension span in the world—4200 feet long.

Enormous quantities of material will be used to make this soaring steel and concrete highway possible. Steel for instance, will run to 100,000 tons. Including cables, this is sufficient to load a freight train twenty miles long.

Each of the two giant cables will weight 1100 tons, and each will contain 27,572 separate wires. The total of this wire is 80,000 miles, enough to spin three globes around the globe. The steel stringers in the main span and its approaches would extend for twenty-five miles.

The total concrete on the piers, fenders and anchorages is 254,990 cubic yards enough to build a solid shaft of concrete 25 feet square and two miles high.

The strength of the bridge will be 2.6 times the maximum load which can be crowded upon the complete structure.

The cables will be outlined in lights for their entire length and the giant towers will be floodlighted.

A regular United States lighthouse station, probably the first of its kind in the world, will be incorporated in the bridge.

A moving sidewalk, motor-driven, will extend the entire length of the bridge beneath the deck to facilitate constant inspection and care.

A FOX Company headed by Clyde E. Elliott, who directed 'Bring 'Em Back Alive,' is in the Malay jungle making 'Man Eater.' Wallace Beery and Clark Gable are making a picture about Soviet Russia which delineates the rise to power of a peasant, played by Beery. Lillian Harvey, German success but English-born, will make French and German versions of her own pictures. Her first American picture will be 'His Majesty's Car.'

Nancy Carroll and Ricardo Cortez will have the leads in 'Bedfellows.' RKO's 'King Kong' is a fantastic film which the central character is a 50-foot ape. The animal hurls automobiles at buildings, tears up elevated tracks and fights a squadron of pursuit planes. In fact, the ape grabs one out of the air and hurls it into the street from the top of the Empire State building. A vast amount of technical ingenuity was used in making the picture.

MGM is working on the heaviest production schedule in a year, with twenty pictures in work already begun. Among them are: Helen Hayes and Clarke Gable in 'The White Sister,' F. Marion Crawford's novel; Robert Montgomery, Walter Huston and Jimmy Durante in 'Hell Below,' a submarine drama, by Commander Ellsberg; Norma Shearer in 'La Tendresse,' Gary Cooper and Joan Crawford in 'Today We Live,' a world war story by Faulkner; Ramon Navarro in 'The Man on the Nile,' Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery in 'Tugboat Annie,' Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan in 'Tarzan and His Mate,' another jungle adventure, etc.

Columbia is producing 'Beneath the Sea,' largely photographed from a diving bell. Universal has engaged Ken Maynard for a series of Westerns, to replace the Mix pictures. James Cagney will appear in 'Reform School,' a story of younger criminals.

Edward G. Robinson is working on 'The Little Giant,' a story of a racketeer who started to lead a respectable life. The Marx Brothers will begin 'Cracked Ice' in February. Richard Bennett is out of pictures for at least a month because of illness. He has been forced out of Marlene Dietrich's 'Song of Songs.'

PICAYUNE FOLK HAVE OFFER OF TUNG TREES BARTER FOR PRODUCE

Farmers Have Unusual Offer From Lamont Rowlands,
Originator of Tung Tree Planting in That Section of Pearl River County.

Lamont Rowlands originator of tung tree planting in the Picayune section, reports that many farmers in this territory have expressed intention of taking advantage of his offer to provide tung trees for planting.

Through B. F. Abel at Carriere, eight miles north of Picayune, who is handling this phase of the work, farmers have been offered the opportunity to buy tung trees in exchange for farm products of almost any nature, so that those who do not care to participate in any co-operative planting program and are not able to pay cash for trees, may have the opportunity to obtain trees.

Mr. Rowlands does not contemplate the erection of an oil expressing plant this year, although he is of the opinion that production in his own orchards and in those of others who may be depending on him will be sufficient to justify the erection of a plant in another year.

Mr. Rowlands is not making any new plantings this spring, but is confining his activities to the care and cultivation of the 9000 acres he has planted. Growth of the tree in his acreage and also in the 2000 acres of Rowlands trees planted by the Denkmann Lumber Company, is reported to be excellent.

Idea Made Clear

Mr. Rowlands plans and ideas as to tung development were made clear in the following statement: "It is our intention to erect a crushing mill next year, and with the crop from our own acreage and what will probably come to the mill from the Great Southern Lumber Company and the Denkmann Lumber Company, we will have the production from approximately 15,000 acres already planted. We will process the nuts from small acreages in the vicinity at actual cost."

"There is no record in the United States where tung trees have come into profitable bearing until four years after they are transplanted from the nursery into the grove where they will permanently grow. Some nuts are produced in the third year but not a profitable crop. In the fourth year, with normal growth of the tree, all the grove could expect to pay for the care, cultivation and upkeep of the trees. They begin to bear commercially in the fifth year."

"Experiments made in Florida and throughout this southern section of the United States indicate that hardy trees grow best in virgin soil. After a number of years of investigation and carefully scrutinizing all the areas in which tung trees have been grown, we feel that the hills and rolling lands back of Picayune are the most suitable areas in the United States."

Areas Limited.

"We feel also that these areas are very narrow as the even distribution of rainfall which is necessary for the growth of the tung tree does not extend very far north, and the influence from the Gulf and Lake Pontchartrain tempers the air from late frosts in a limited area. The planter should confine his planting to this area as the trees bloom the latter part of March and early April and late frosts are liable to injure the bud and kill the crop."

"So far we have found that wherever Satsuma oranges have grown successfully the growth and fruitage of tung trees can be depended upon, and we think it inadvisable to plant the trees outside of the Satsuma area. Another thing the planter should be sure of is that the water level is at least 25 or 30 feet below the surface."

"Through an arrangement made with B. F. Abel at Carriere, we are offering tung trees for transplanting at low price, taking in exchange any products of the farm, and where the moral risk is good we are willing to take the planter's notes for the trees. In this way the planter will absolutely own his trees and receive the full benefit of the crop gathered."

VANITY

A graceful flower of azure blue
On a slender stem of green—
An iris waving in the wind
Bent over a pool serene.
And in its limped crystal depths
Her image was reflected
She saw that she was beautiful,
And straight-way she neglected
Everything but a foolish thought
Of vanity and pride.
She scorned the golden butterfly
When o'er her he would glide.
She whispered to the little fish,
'You're not as handsome as I.'
The homely fish with big wide-mouths
Silently floated by.
The next day the flower withered,
And died without delay—
The little fish if they could speak
Most probably would say,
'What is beauty without life,
And what with vain thoughts there?
Ah! Beauty, Vanity and Pride,
Are empty as the air.'

GOV. CONNER OF MISSISSIPPI PLANS TO STUMP STATE

Plans To Make Speaking
Tour of the State—No
Politics, He Says.

Gov. Sennett Conner plans to 'take the stump for Mississippi' late in the spring on a tour during which he said he will speak 'in every courthouse in the state.'

'I just want to talk to the people when I am not asking them for anything except their counsel, confidence and co-operation' said the governor.

He explained that he intends to go before the people at a time when there are no elections looming and no candidates for office in the field, and explain to citizens of the state 'what has been accomplished and what we hope to do along the line of governmental organization, especially regarding economy in local government, more equal distribution of tax burdens and exemption of homesteads.'

'It will be,' he added, 'just a report to the stockholders.'

'The people have shown a fine spirit of cooperation and I think they are entitled to a detailed face-to-face report from the governor.'

'I have gone to them so many times asking for their votes that I want to talk to them when nobody is running for office and we are not divided along political lines.'

'I am proud of the fact that the people of Mississippi today are not divided along lines of whether or not they voted for Conner. There may be some slight differences between those who want to see the administration succeed for the good of the state and those who want to see it fail regardless of the state's welfare, but these differences, if they exist, are not serious.'

'The people today are more interested in public affairs than I have ever known them to be and they are serious about the business of government and have no political personal or fractional differences to split them.'

Gov. Conner said he looked forward to the speaking tour with a great deal of pleasure and that he would have undertaken it last summer but for the fact that political campaigns were being waged then and he did not wish to associate the tour with politics.

He indicated the tour may extend over a period of three months.

BEAUTY—YOUR BIRTHRIGHT

(For the Sea Coast Echo)

By BETTE

LARGE NOSE PORES

ANY complexions otherwise flawless are ruined by large nose pores. When the oil glands are in a relaxed condition, they throw off an excess of sebaceous matter, which clogs the pores and gradually enlarges them. Although a cure will take months of patient effort, a great improvement can be made with a little care.

First wash the face with a mild soap and warm water. Steam it with a towel wrung out in hot water and applied to the face until the skin is glowing. With a comedone extractor, go over the enlarged pores in the nose, removing their contents. Be careful not to bruise the skin. Make a heavy lather, rub this into the nose, leave on about five minutes, wash off with hot water, follow with a cold rinse, wrap a piece of ice in a cloth moistened with witchhazel and rub over the entire face.

Take this treatment twice a week. It is both stimulating and astringent. Be careful that your powder is not too heavy, and never use a greasy powder base.

ANIMAL KINGDOM REVEALS A BIG FLAW IN MARRIAGE

'Just this one marriage, please, darling,' Tom Collier says to Cecilia in 'The Animal Kingdom.' 'We must make a grand go of it!'

How many couples have gone to the altar with this desire, this vow to make their marriage a success—convinced that theirs is an unyielding love—and have sooner or later rushed to the divorce courts, for release from a bond that has become unbearable?

What is the flaw in marriage? Is it that in affairs of the heart—despite intelligence, culture and ideals—we still belong to the animal kingdom?

Tom Collier, played by Leslie Howard, breaks with Daisy Sage, portrayed by Ann Harding, to marry Cecilia, enacted by Myrna Loy. Daisy is an artist of fine sensibilities and generous nature. She loves Tom, but has wanted their love to be without bonds. Cecilia belongs to Tom's own social world, and could be had only in marriage.

'The Animal Kingdom' is the attraction Sunday and Monday at the A. & G. Theatre. It is an adaptation of Philip Barry's sensational stage success, produced by RKO-Radio Pictures and directed by Edward H. Griffith. Besides Ann Harding, Leslie Howard and Myrna Loy the cast includes William Garman, Neil Hamilton, Henry Stephenson, Ilka Chase, Kent Stengel and Donald Dillaway.

—The value of Christmas savings is best established in one particular instance, at least, this week, in the matter of paying taxes. Many people find the bank's Christmas savings plan an easy means of accumulating money all during the year, and finding quite a sum ready for use when the city and State and county demand their annual ad valorem stipend. It might be well to take a tip from this and if one has not already done so to go to either local bank and start a savings. It is not too late to do so.

Richards, well-known movie executive, and recently appointed receiver for the Saenger theater and other enterprises owned by the same owner interests, came out from New Orleans for the weekend Saturday, accompanied by some half dozen of movie executives, his guests at "Elmwood" home on the No. Beach Boulevard. Mr. Richards said the group were just away from business for a week-end, at least.

—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Grevenberg and family have returned from a week-end trip to New Orleans where they visited at the home of Mrs. Grevenberg's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Felix Gaudin, at 1317 Henry Clay avenue, who celebrated their 48th anniversary of their marriage. Dr. and Mrs. Gaudin were the recipients of many congratulatory messages on so unusual and happy occasion.

—As the season advances towards spring it is perceptible that many more week-enders visit the Coast out from New Orleans, both by train and auto. The number increases each week. Hard-surfaced highway offers increased inducement for auto traveling. The Coast at all times is irresistible with our New Orleans friends and no opportunity to visit here is ever lost. With the approach of spring and the highways and roadways garbed in the greenery and blossom of the season the coast's allurements will be all the more compelling.

—Mayor Blaize, among the many improvements and innovations he has set on foot during the short time elapsed since his inauguration, one that is notable in the manner in which the street force keeps the business section on the Front way free from litter. Carefully "raked" and swept the streets not only add to the appearance of business houses but attracts the attention and commendation of visitors, to say nothing of home folks. Clean-up is as sanitary as well as the "city beautiful."

—Probably no camellia tree is as large and covered with a wealth of open blossoms as that in the front yard of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Davis and the former's mother, Mrs. P. P. Davis, who makes her home at the same domicile in Carroll avenue. Year after year the tree seems to flourish more, larger and brighter blossoms, that are noted not only for their pink and white variegated color but for the largeness of the double camellia. Both the size of the bush and blossom, and colors as well, form a combination of rare beauty.

—N. D. Alfonso who has been connected with Swift & Company at Gulfport as salesman, left Saturday for Chicago and New York on an educational trip of five weeks, after which will return to New Orleans as imported cheese representative for Swift & Company in the south. Mr. Alfonso started with Swift & Co. at Gulfport as chauffeur and collector and received promotions to different positions, being salesman for the Pass Christian-Bay St. Louis territory at the time he was appointed to his new position. Mr. Alfonso is well and favorably known over this section, and while we regret to see him go and will miss his cheery presence, we are glad to note his promotion. We hope his successor will be equally as friendly and courteous, worth while assets in the business world.

WHAT A REPORTER IN THE EMBRYO SAW:

Short of news data again, the Echo editor sent out the young embryonic reporter one day this week, with the injunction that he note what he saw and also what he might hear.

Returning some time later this is what his notebook revealed, "Strolling Main Street."

Good looking green car parked.

At the postoffice people buying stamps. Purple ones in fewer quantities in contrast to the former red ones. Don't know what the objection: The color or the price.

Henry Capdepon, a walking encyclopedia on postoffice matters, explaining one of the rules of the government's. Very intricate matter, it appeared, but easy for Henry.

Assistant Fred Herlihy smilingly serving at another window.

A Bay St. Louis resident, making a living at home, getting ready to buy a money order for an out-of-town mail order house.

Mrs. McCracken on an errand for Dr. Jas. A. Evans.

Miss Mae Edwards serving the public without stint and without pay at Red Cross headquarters.

Hugh Bourgeois writing a poster for week-end grocery bargains.

C. A. Breath, Jr., surrounded by many young friends. Best looking new show window in town. Junior getting ready for spring trade.

Arthur Scaife going homeward. Possibly for an early dinner.

Archie Hart crossing the street, from his home. Presumably to the postoffice.

Dr. D. H. Ward complacently smoking a pipe. Genial as usual.

Business and professional men in line at Chamber of Commerce seeking to pay dues and manifesting great interest in the town's business clearing house.

George R. Rea talking to a party from New Orleans. Both parties smiling.

Tony Benvenuti on the lookout for a big job of plumbing. His brother serving a customer.

Emile Gex, "Red" Favre and Randolph Lader getting into automobile. No idea where they were going.

"Bob" Genin discussing a case with a client. But not so—discovered it was golf.

Numerous automobiles around courthouse. Never saw so many. Crowds. Seemingly eager to pay taxes.

Tax-Collector T. Ed Keller and assistants, Horace Kergosien and Johnson S. Shaw handling the situation with ease and promptness.

No one complaining about taxes. Seemingly a number in a group said taxes were too low. How can the county prosper?

Deputy Clerk Warren Carver and his million-dollar smile. Serving one of the fair sex, of course. "Service with a smile," always.

County Supt. of Education A. S. McQueen and County Agent R. H. Bryson at their respective posts. Both busy.

Miss Ethel Gex at a typewriter in the clerk's office.

J. Perry Drake looking up records in vault.

Attorney W. W. Stockstill checking a document.

County Assessor George Cuevas one of the busiest men in the courthouse.

Then I complimented Mr. McDaniel, in charge of the courthouse premises.

City Attorney L. M. Gex going from courthouse to city hall.

Supervisor Dick Cue talking to a group of interested Hancock countians.

Gaspar Maurigi supremely happy and seemingly busy. It appears he was waiting for a call for dinner.

The church corner is attractive with well kept premises.

Across the street August Schiro is looking at his show windows. One of the two stores in town that has the best dressed windows—always.

Mr. Schiro is a good citizen.

On the other corner J. W. Vairin and sons conduct grocery store. Many people sitting on the dock step. Discussing current events. Mr. Vairin is well posted and well read.

Then I thought I was away too long and might lose my job. Could not afford to be "fired." Jobs are scarce and far between. So I rush back with the above. Appreciative about the outcome. Wonder if I am earning my "chow."

On my way back met Dr. Lewis.

Beautiful Church Wedding Wednesday at Our Lady of the Gulf

A marriage of interest and prominence was that celebrated Wednesday morning during a nuptial mass at the church of Our Lady of the Gulf, Rev. A. J. Gmelch, pastor, officiating, contracting parties Mr. Alden Mauffray of Bay St. Louis and Miss Flora Martin of Mobile, who has been visiting here at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Arnold and family in Dunbar avenue.

The bride was gown in gray, with accessories to match, and carried a bouquet. Her immediate attendant, maid of honor, was Miss Oleah Mauffray, and groom's best man, his brother, Mr. Lugier Mauffray. Miss Mauffray wore a deep blue dress with sport hat and shoes and gloves to match. The bridal party in youthful happiness elicited the admiration and good wishes of the number present at the church.

A bridal breakfast was served at the Oriole Tea Room, presided by Mrs. Orie Pollard, after which the young bride and groom left by auto for a trip to Palm Beach and other points in Florida. On their return to Bay St. Louis they will reside in Citizen street.

The groom is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O. Mauffray, an exemplary young man and connected in the local business world, manager of the Mauffray mercantile store, while the bride is an attractive and charming young woman of the Gulf City. Both Miss Mauffray and Mr. Lugier Mauffray are sister and brother respectively of the groom.

They have started on life's highway under the most favorable auspices, an ideal couple, and it is easy to see the happy welfare in store for them.
